Those falsies aren't foolin' anyone. Swap outdated lash extensions for ombre eyelashes using bold, vibrant color.

You're well aware that contouring is out and strobing is in. It's all about highlighting the parts of your face the sun naturally hits.

A close-up photograph of a woman's face, focusing on her lips and hands. She has her eyes closed and is wearing a vibrant, ombre cherry-red lipstick. Her hands are positioned near her lips, with fingers slightly curled. She is wearing several rings: a gold ring with a large, multi-pronged starburst design on her ring finger, a gold ring with a small clear stone on her middle finger, and a gold ring with a rectangular stone on her index finger. Her fingernails are painted a metallic, gunmetal grey color. The background is a soft, out-of-focus blue.

lip otm

Everyone is rockin' a cherry-red lip these days, but lips stained as though you've actually eaten those cherries? For an ombre pout, focus color only on the inside of lips.

le smoking

Smoky eyes are the tuxedos of makeup. Don't show up wearing what everyone else is. Revamp this over-used look by applying smoky makeup underneath eyes rather than all around.

Makeup artist Justine Del Rosario suggests using eyelid primer under eyes to prevent smudging. Using liquid liner, draw a line along lower lashes. At the outer corners of eyes, slightly extend wings up and outwards, so eyes appear lifted.

into the blue

For an ombré effect, swipe multiple coats of bold, electric blue mascara to tips of lashes only. Run a lash comb or spoolie through eyelashes to separate clumps. Del Rosario's tip: Apply a coat of lash primer to make blue mascara look extra vibrant.

Apply a shimmery liquid or cream-based highlighter onto the highest points of your face: cheekbones, the bridge of your nose, cupid's bow, chin, and just a touch on the center of your forehead (so skin doesn't look too shiny).

lip otm

Apply a thin layer of concealer onto lips. Pat a berry lipstick or lipstain on the center of your pucker, staying away from the perimeter of lips. Blend the color outward to create a gradient effect.

It's important that dark circles are concealed for this look. Apply black liner to lower lash line and waterline. Smudge liner toward outer corner of eyes, rather than downward. Sweep black shadow along lower lash line and blend outward.
